- Wire Cutters

Easy DIY Bunny Butt Wreath Directions:

- The bunny butt is the star of the show on this wreath. Anything you do with spring flowers, carrots, etc. should not detract from this cute little bunny bottom.
- The grapevine wreath used in this tutorial is 10". If you purchased (or have) a smaller or larger grapevine wreath, adjust sizes accordingly.
- Cut a large square (a 10" x 10" size is used in this tutorial) from the fake fur.
- Place the cut fake fur face down on a flat surface (fur side down).
- Place down a handful (or more) of polyester stuffing on top of the fur-side down fake fur.

- Fold up the edges of the fake fur to make a little bag. It will look like a little favor bag. Tie it closed with some twine. Leave a long piece of the twine to dangle so you can use it to tie the bunny butt to the wreath.

- Hot glue a white pom pom to the front of the fur poof to make the bunny's butt.

- Tie the bunny butt you just made to the wreath using the long twine you left dangling. In this tutorial, the bunny butt is placed at 5 o'clock on the dial and the long string on the twine wraps around and through the grapevine wreath to secure the bunny bottom. You can place your bunny's bottom anywhere you would like on the grapevine wreath.

- Adhere securely with a few dabs of hot glue.

- Use wire cutters to cut off each individual bloom segment from your greenery.

- Arrange this greenery around the bunny butt to give the illusion that the bunny is hiding in a field of flowers.

- Adhere securely with a few dabs of hot glue.

Tie several fake carrots together with twine, again leaving a long string free so you can tie the carrot bunch to the wreath. Used in this tutorial are three fake carrots taking into account the 10" size of this grapevine wreath. If you use a larger wreath form, you may want to consider five carrots and/or large fake carrots.

- Tie the carrot bunch to the 10 o'clock position of the wreath. Again, you can place your carrots anywhere on your wreath. The carrots are across from the bunny in this case because he is burrowing through the vines to get to the carrots across from him.

- Adhere securely with a few dabs of hot glue.

Note: if you reuse your wreath form from season to season omit hot gluing the bunny butt, flowers, and carrots to the wreath. Simply tie them in place.
